1. The authority to decide the need for the dissemination of intelligence relating to the national security rests with the Assistant Director, DCI, under the overall policies of the Director and with certain specific exceptions approved by the Director. In carrying out such disseminations, it is considered that a general security policy should be established for guidance, and that the facilities of the Executive for Inspection and Security should be utilized as required.

2. CIA Security Regulations prescribe the overall policies and certain detailed procedures and restrictions to prevent the unauthorized disclosure of classified information to I.A.B. members and all other Americans and individuals. The following supplemental security policy is set forth for general guidance in carrying out the dissemination of written intelligence material to departments or agencies other than I.A.B. members, and also to certain agencies for which special arrangements are provided (see paragraph 2.f. below):

a. Ordinarily, no material classified higher than CONFIDENTIAL will be disseminated. In exceptional cases, when DCI determines the need to disseminate material classified higher than CONFIDENTIAL, it may be disseminated only after obtaining specific direction for proper security handling of the material from the Executive for Inspection and Security.

b. Material that is disseminated will ordinarily be delivered to, and signed for by, the Liaison Clearing Authority named in the applicable Contact Security Policy Memorandum issued under authority of the reference.

c. Material classified higher than RESTRICTED will be disseminated to additional individuals in the agency only when it is necessary to receive it by specific ruling of the Executive for Inspection and Security. In making deliveries of material classified CONFIDENTIAL or higher, the inner envelope will have typed on it, "TO BE READ BY ADDRESSEE ONLY."

d. In every dissemination action, extreme care will be taken not to reveal sensitive sources.

f. Dissemination to the DDCI (RDB), the ABC and the ~~AMC~~ under OCP's existing special arrangements is subject only to the CIA Security Regulations. Subject to concurrence of the Executive for Inspection and Security, similar special arrangements may be made for dissemination to certain other Federal agencies if it is established by surveys provided for in paragraph 3.b. hereof that the agencies' security standards and procedures are equivalent to those of IAB members and if the agencies' requirements for material from CIA are sufficiently voluminous to warrant such special arrangements.

g. Dissemination to departments and agencies outside of IAB members and agencies for which special arrangements are provided (in accordance with paragraph 2.f. above) should not be completely automatic but measures should be instituted to have any material which is in question reviewed from the security viewpoint by appropriate control authority within your office prior to release.

3. The Executive for Inspection and Security will, upon request

a. Take appropriate steps to investigate the loyalty and trustworthiness of proposed recipients of CIA classified information, and approve or disapprove such individuals;

b. Furnish reports of surveys of individual agencies setting forth details regarding personnel, and internal procedures and methods for the safeguarding of classified material.
